Housing Development / New Paintings and Drawings

September 11 - October 25, 2025

September 11 - October 25, 2025

Opens Thursday, September 11, 6 - 8:30pm

Thomas Erben is thrilled to present Housing Development: New Paintings and Drawings, Harriet Korman's sixth exhibition with the gallery, which includes a 2021 solo presentation at Art Basel Miami Beach. Situating this group of new paintings and drawings within Korman's recent oeuvre, the show's catalogue also includes examples from Korman's exhibition Permeable/Resistant (2018) as well as Life Drawing/Figure Painting (2022). The catalogue is accompanied by an essay by John Yau.

Seen together, the three series "demonstrate how one approach can have different underlying ideas". Korman further elaborates: "In the series Housing Development, I wanted to work with a house form, a form I always liked. I didn't want to paint pictures of houses, I just wanted to get the feeling of that form in the most non-objective terms – weight, stability and volume. Eventually, a simple grid configuration began to have that feeling, and the series took off with numerous renditions, colors, proportions."

The new works continue on Korman's matter-of-fact use of color: usually straight out of the tube to define areas, and eliminating mixed-in white, avoiding any allusion to atmosphere, light or space. Painting's flat objecthood is acknowledged by dividing the surface into simple geometries, drawn by hand and adjusted attentively, applying several layers of paint to achieve an intensity of color. Developing the series' chosen configurations - quadrants in 2018, nesting rectangles in 2022 and now structures - Korman initially draws with oilstick on paper, subsequently transforming some of the results to paintings. Though based on the same approach, each body of work is concerned with a different set of formal investigations, which are iterated in the series without being serial.

Over the years, Korman's work has garnered many notable reviews. Highlighting the artist's achievements, John Yau wrote in 2021: "Harriet Korman's career is a benchmark for abstract painting", adding "By stripping down the paintings to the irreducible elements of line and color, but never settling for a fashionable format to deliver them, she attains a singular position as one of New York's purest abstract painters"

Korman describes her paintings as “things as they are”, a quality which Raphael Rubinstein recognizes, stating “You can only make paintings like Korman’s if you have faith that you can channel visual verities greater than your own individual style.”

Korman further elaborates in the catalogue: "Today in art things are not fixed, an image or symbol can mean many things. This area of multiplicity interests me. It's like entering an unknown environment where something new can happen, and for me painting is that place – immersed in the colors and substance of the paint."
