

Founded by artists in 1928, SculptureCenter is a not-for-profit arts institution located in Long Island City, NY. We commission new work and present exhibits by emerging and established artists from New York and around the world. Our Tumblr site focuses on emerging artists and work that offers new ways of considering sculpture, or furthers the understanding of the discipline and how it can intersect with other mediums. Content is selected by SculptureCenter's curatorial staff and guest curators.

Brooklyn and Los Angeles-based artist Whitney Clafin works in a variety of media. She often incorporates secondhand or discarded objects into her painted collages. The wine bottles pictured here started out as a place to clean her brushes, then became paintings in themselves, and finally objects for sale on the Venice Beach boardwalk. Whitney received her MFA from Yale University in 2009 and has recently exhibited at Real Fine Arts. She currently has a show on view at Thomas Erben Gallery through July 28, 2012.
